

Personal Development at Our School

At our school, we are committed to helping children grow into respectful, responsible, and kind members of society. Our approach to personal development is built around British Values, Protected Characteristics, and the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child, while also emphasising the responsibilities that come with these rights, such as working hard, showing respect, and being kind to others.

We use a range of resources to support this learning:

Picture News: Weekly updates on current events help children explore the world around them and discuss news stories in a way that links to British values, children's rights, and our focus on responsibility.

Amazing People: This resource highlights key figures who have made a positive impact on the world, encouraging children to reflect on important character traits such as courage, perseverance, and kindness.

All of our personal development work is closely linked to our school REACH values:

Respect – for ourselves, others, and the world around us

Enjoyment – finding joy in learning and life

Aspiration – aiming high and believing in our potential

Community – contributing positively to school and society

Honesty – being truthful, fair, and trustworthy

Through these activities and resources, children not only learn about their rights and values, but also develop the personal qualities and sense of responsibility that will help them thrive both in school and in life.
